Description

Marcel Rus' favorite artist is Sean Scully. Fantastic how he can show relationships and emotions with only blocks and planes. He inspires Marcel without copying him.

In this work the tension is sought between a white, black and yellow surface. The eye is drawn to the yellow. But how beautiful and versatile is the drawing in white and how important for the composition is the black! So it is with every day. There are things that scream for attention. But the most normal things are often the most beautiful of all.
